These “Fourteen Lessons” are an introduction to some of the most important recorded wisdoms of our time. Embers of this sacred knowledge can faintly be seen through the veils of almost every religion, including the new age movement. Each doctrine seems to have a piece of this grail, but none contain it in its entirety. This book contains the original correspondence course, mailed out monthly over a century ago, to the homes of eager students of esoteric philosophy, (the course’s mantrams, meditations and class notes have been included as well.) Humanity’s eternal quest for the meaning of life so often leads to the Infinite statement: “Man, know thyself.” Within this book are elementary teachings on the Law of Karma (spiritual cause and effect,) the material/physical body, the instinctive mind, spiritual consciousness, global unity, Oneness, compassion and Love. Humans are extraordinary biological/spiritual machines, your abilities are vast, this book also explains the truth behind our pineal glands, Prana and Pranic healing, the meaning of auras and their colours, the genuine power of thought and emotion and what happens after the change called “death,” the astral world, our astral bodies and far, far beyond. This course was a gentle, elementary introduction to the ageless, intricate scientific/spiritual knowledge of Theosophy, a loving esoteric, ethical teaching of universal unity and true service of humanity. The purpose of republishing these lessons with a modern introduction is to place them out in front once again. I wish to make them visible on bookshelves and online, so that any and all may be able to study, learn and grow from them as I have been able to do.
