"My Dog Is Dying: What Do I Do?", a #1 best seller and hot new release is an emotional emergency first-aid kit that will support readers with pet loss grief and pet hospice decisions. It is a handbook and journal packed with useful information. "My Dog Is Dying: What Do I Do?" will support people as a close friend to accompany them on the journey of pet loss grief with unconditional love. Included are self-help journaling questions to help readers with their pet loss grief. At the end of each chapter, there are three Contemplation Questions, designed to help readers proceed even more deeply on their grief journey to become an active participant when coping with their dog's illness. People who feel alone with their feelings of grief over the loss of their pets have found support from the suggestions and information in this helpful book. A Testimonial from Denise, who's dog Sadie had cancer... "The best thing about this book is that it can immediately put your mind at ease, center your soul, and provide tips on how to instantly feel less hopeless, less alone, and less freaked out. I use this book everyday to get through all the crazy feelings and situations that come with losing Sadie to a horrifying disease. Plus, Wendy provides an extra bonus of ways to prepare for the end of your dog's life. Without this book, I would be a mess."
